CHAUTAUQUA ENDS

Greatest Educational Event Ever
Held in Maysville Closes

Opie Read, Premier Lecturer and Humorist, Delights Assemblage

The first Maysville Chautauqua closed last evening.

The contract for the 1913 Chautauqua has already been closed, the Maysville High School Lecture Committee being sponsor for the financial end of the event.

Our people were quick to see what a treat and what instruction there really is in this Chautauqua movement.

Although the weather man was unkind yesterday, the fun went on in the big top just the same.

In the morning there was a laughable pig eating and apple eating contest between the hungry Boy Scouts, while the lecture recital of "The Servant in the House," by the Rev. William E. Danforth, charmed the audience. Rev. Danforth has completely won the hearts of every one who has heard his splendidly delivered talks. He has had more to say than nearly all the other speakers combined and for such a long continued service his eloquence and logic never flagged and his last effort was as good as the first. A deep student of people, nature and books he fills the bill and Maysvillians are ready to welcome him back with renewed and eager attention if he should visit this city again.

"The Anita Ladies' Orchestra," a sextette of superb personnel and talent, also captured the afternoon and evening audiences. These young ladies are high class artists and entertainers. One is said to be worth a million dollars and another half a million and all deserve equal praise. They are with the Chautauqua because they choose to travel only with an elite company and Maysville is pleased to put her o. k. on them.

Opie Read, the charming Tennessee novelist, story teller and lecturer, was yesterday's headliner. His amusing and pathetic lecture entitled "Scarecrows," given in the afternoon, marked him as a master in the gentle art of arousing the risibilities and the emotions of his hearers.

Lord, what a lawyer Opie Read would have made! He was born in Sney's Tennessee, but spent many years in Kentucky, and this, no doubt, accounts for his quaint and prevailing humor. Mr. Read is a six-footer of meat, kindly face and mien, and on the platform talking he instantly takes his hearers with him and lets them see, as through a glass, his own beautiful thoughts and word pictures. His descriptive yesterday of the modern grand opera was extraordinarily humorous and was only too true. Mr. Read, aside from his wit and jolly sarcasm, has a message to the people for the suppression of the city sweatshops, where today millions of females are killing their brief lives away at starvation wages. Our readers will have to hear Mr. Read to get a true estimate of his wonderful mastery of Southern dialect and wit; or, best of all, get his stories from the library and read them.

Last night closed the first Maysville Chautauqua season, and no one can say anything but what it was a brilliant success. The program last evening wound up with Mr. Plumpstead's imitable impersonations and the enjoyable concert by the "Anita Ladies' Orchestra."

Superintendent Correllson who has been so courteous, patient and energetic in conducting the week's program, took the stage and made a brief address of thanks to the Maysville public and congratulated our city on signing up the contract for next year's Chautauqua and guaranteeing $1,500 to the Redpath Bureau. Rev. Roger L. Clark, Prof. J. W. Bradner and Attorney Frank P. O'Donnell also spoke brief words of approval, and lastly President Harry P. Harrison of the Redpath Bureau of Chicago also spoke, reviewing the Chautauqua growth and saying that there were now over 600 Chautauques in the country this season and talked of their remarkable educational and moral influence and was pleased that Maysville had been enlisted under the Chautauqua banner.

The Woman's Club will aid in making the 1913 Chautauqua a success.

Now for 1913!

Miss Laura B. Clay to Speak

Her subject will be "School Suffrage for Women," and all should hear her, especially the men.

CORSET COVER SALE

The lowering of prices is caused by the fact that the corset covers have been soiled by handling—to the extent that we would not call them perfectly fresh. Their quality, their value to you is not changed—only they must make just one more trip to the laundry than the other corset covers in stock which are specklessly white and bear regular prices. But laundering costs nothing in comparison to what you save.

The majesty of democracy, unterrified and undefiled.—Courier-Journal.

And from such may our Heavenly Father deliver us, Amen!

Not only is the world growing better, but what is still more surprising, the government at Washington is growing economical, and we fully expect to soon hear of the senators and congressman abolishing the mileage and franking grafts. Congress has refused to increase the appropriation for mounting the skins collected by Colonel Roosevelt in Africa to $325,000. The amount appropriated was $250,000, but this is not going to cover the expense. Of course, we do not claim to be an authority on such matters, but it seems to us that even $250,000 invested in mounting skins is certain some skins, and we hope no friend of ours will be called upon to make us a present that it costs us that much to take care of.

Down in Oklahoma recently a man went into a store to buy a saw. He saw the kind he wanted and asked the price. It was $1.65, the dealer said. "Good gracious," said the man, "I can get the same thing from Sears Roebuck & Co. for $1.35. That's less than it cost me," said the dealer, "but I'll sell it on the same terms as the mail order house just the same."

"All right," said the customer, "You can send it along and charge it to my account." "Not on your life," the dealer replied. "No charging accounts. You can't do business with the mail order house that way. Fork over the cash."

The customer complied. "Now 2 cents for postage and five cents for a money order." "What—"

"Certainly, you have to send a money order to a mail order house, you know."

The customer, inwardly raving, kept to his agreement and paid the nickel. "Now 25 cents expressage."

"Well I'll be—," he said, but paid it saying, "Now hand me that saw and I'll take it home myself and be rid of this foolery."

"Hand it to you? Where do you think you are? You're in Oklahoma, and I'm in Chicago, and you'll have to wait two weeks for that now."

Whereupon the dealer hung the saw on a peg and put the money in his cash drawer. "That makes $1.67," he said. "It has cost you 2 cents more and taken you two weeks longer to get it than if you had paid my price in the first place.—Square Dealer.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

It takes a strong-minded woman to hold her tongue.

Statesmen are people you read about in ancient history.

An extra easy way not to make money is speculating.

What makes the children specially good is for no callers to be in the house.

Maybe even ghosts are afraid to go downstairs and see if there are burglars.

A girl knows so much at 16 that she'd feel mighty proud to know half as much at 26.

A reformer is usually a man who is very energetic in urging that somebody ought to do something.

The news from European countries evidences wide-spread discontent and restlessness of the people under existing conditions. All of Europe, with the possible exception of France, is seething with socialistic and revolutionary ideas. Political conditions there cannot long remain as they are at present, and great changes, whether by concessions to the populace on the part of the reigning monarchs or by volcanic explosions that will shatter thrones, are impending.—Exchange.

The Kentucky State Board of Health has most happily designated the State Bureau of Vital Statistics as "Kentucky's Big Family Bible." The Virginia Health Department, which is inaugurating the enforcement of a new law for the registration of births and deaths, has appealed to the public in a different but probably equally effective manner. A poster recently printed by the state health department and distributed to every city, asks in large type.

"If you owned a thorough-bred, you would want to preserve his pedigree. Would you not like to preserve your own? Would you not be glad to know the birth and death of your father, yourself and your children would be recorded where you know it would be kept forever? You can have a record of births and deaths in Virginia if you will assist in the enforcement of the law."

Such an appeal to the public, shows a growing understanding of popular psychology on the part of health officials. Compulsion, in the form of fines or imprisonment, may be necessary, in extreme cases, to enforce any law. But The Journal of the American Medical Association thinks it is much better to follow the path of least resistance and to secure the willing co-operation of the people by showing them that health law and regulations are not arbitrary rules, but are for their own protection and benefit! The American people will report births and deaths, if they are convinced of the necessity for such a measure and understand why it is expected of them.

Foolish Philosophy.
The man who is slow to wrath generally makes a fast friend.

For every quarrel a man and wife have before others, they have a dozen when alone.

You are conceited, of course, everyone is, but be careful not to show it. People are easily disgusted, but nothing disgusts them so quickly as conceit in others.

Although every man's hand is against a rat, a rat gets along very well. Think of the luck a rat must have to merely live!

Every man who is whipped for a sin, claims that other men have done more and been whipped less.

Your acquaintances may not help you much, but they can do you a lot of harm if you offend them.

You never knew a good-looking man who was popular among men.

When a man tries himself, the verdict is always in his favor.

Women dress their little girls with taste, but sometimes they put costumes on their little boys that look funny.

Ever know a man so fair that he wouldn't twist his side of the story a little?

It is said of so many boys: "They will come out all right," an intimation that they are not all right now.—Ed Howe.

On July 2, 1778, crushed under real and imaginary woes, Rousseau died in a fit. Some historians think despair drove him to suicide.

His "Confessions"—a wonderful if unreliable book—give the man's distorted view of his own life and of life in general. A genius, a blackguard, and probably—in later years, at least—a semi-lunatic.

Jean Jacques Rousseau, Philosopher and Scoundrel

JEAN JACQUES ROUSSEAU, self-confessed thief, wrote strongly on uprightness. He also preached fiery discourses on the sacredness of domestic affection—and sent his own five children to a foundling asylum. He changed religions as another man would change from summer to winter clothes. A writer on morality, his own morals were unspeakable. He was ever eager to receive aid; and still more industrious in abusing benefactors. He had a genius for philosophic writings—and a far greater genius for making enemies. The kindest thing that can be said about him personally is that he was probably more or less insane. Here is his story:

Rousseau was the son of a Swiss watchmaker. His father in 1722, when the lad was ten years old, became involved in a street row and had to leave his Geneva home, calmly deserting his family. Jean Jacques was brought up by his mother's relatives, who apprenticed him at thirteen to a notary. The boy and his master could not get on together, so Jean was apprenticed over again, this time to an engraver. All his long life Rousseau quarreled with everybody into whose society he was thrown. He began with the engraver. At sixteen he "jumped" his apprenticeship and ran away from Geneva.

He then began a series of wanderings which were more or less interesting, but scarcely profitable either to himself or to others. He changed his religion at the outset, encountering some rather doubtful adventures, and at last became a footman in the household of a Mme. de Verceilis. While he was working there he stole a costly ribbon. The theft was discovered. Rousseau saved himself from punishment by falsely accusing a maid servant of the theft. The tale of this wholly shameful affair is found in his celebrated "Confessions."

When his employer died, Rousseau found another situation—and promptly lost it on account of his conduct. His experience for the next few years led him through all grades of society, from vagabondage to court circles. It was not until 1745 that he won any fame. Then he became known as a clever writer and musician. Several persons of high rank took an interest in his career. From each of these people he accepted what aid he could get, then quarreled with his benefactors and usually spoke and wrote ill of them.

In a prize essay, written in 1750, he openly declared that progress and higher civilization had proved a curse to mankind. This essay made him for a time the idol of Paris' artificial and novelty-seeking society. He followed up his literary success by a really beautiful opera. But his attacks on various French customs and ideals made Paris an uncomfortable abode for him. Back he went to Geneva (again changing his religion to fit his surroundings) and met with a cordial reception from the learned men of Switzerland.

Here he took up his literary work again and dazzled the world by his "problem novels" and philosophical treatises. But he continued his life effort of making as many enemies as possible. And such enemies as his personality could not reach were made by his writings. His novel "Emile"—a radical sort of educational thesis in fiction form—was condemned by the Paris parliament; and Rousseau dared not set foot in the French capital for fear of arrest. Other works of his were denounced by the Swiss authorities. His "Contrat Social" (which demanded that governments be ruled by the people and preached universal suffrage) brought down upon him the hatred of conservative thinkers. Altogether, he began to find it hard to choose a place of abode where he would be safe from persecution.

He went to England and there quarreled with his patrons, behaved insolently toward the king, and found it convenient to come back to the continent of Europe. This time he was allowed to settle in Paris. His health had become shattered. So had his mind. To add to his woes, he married Therese Le Vasseur, former cook at a third-rate inn. Their five children he sent to a foundling asylum, thus giving his enemies a fine chance to compare his unnatural action with the high sentiments he had written about the sanctity of the home and the education of the young. Therese's mother was the typical comic paper mother-in-law. She rendered Rousseau's home life miserable.

On July 2, 1778, crushed under real and imaginary woes, Rousseau died in a fit. Some historians think despair drove him to suicide.

His "Confessions"—a wonderful if unreliable book—give the man's distorted view of his own life and of life in general. A genius, a blackguard, and probably—in later years, at least—a semi-lunatic.

Women at last had the ballot and an oily politician was after the suffragette vote. "I appeal to the hand that rocks the cradle," he began. "Out it out," interrupted his pal. "This is a fashionable audience and there ain't a mother in the house."

FACTS COUNT! Hot Air is Cheap!

Newspaper advertising costs money. Therefore we believe in stating facts in our advertising space instead of wasting it on hot air. Some days ago a man said to us that if we would sell him a small house built as cheaply as a certain Chicago mail order house that he would buy it. We sold it Saturday.

SOME INDEPENDENCE DAY THOUGHTS

The flag looks best on a house that is in good repair.

This is a Union of States; and each State is a union of communities.

The thing to which our forefathers objected was a mail-order Government.

We ought not to hesitate to live a little for the town for which our fathers died.

Our forefathers wanted a freedom that was made at home, on they could see the goods.

A town like this struck the first blow for freedom; and towns like this are its real custodians.

Patriotism means something besides yelling for the flag; it also means working for the community.

There is no use reading the Declaration of Independence to the man who depends on Chicago for his goods.

When their freedom was threatened, the men of Lexington rebelled; when Lexington was threatened, they rose.

While the orator of the day is whooping it up for the Nation, we hope he will slip in a few good words for the town.

He is a patriot who is for the country, but not for the town; he has nothing to rally around but a mail-order catalogue.

The State Racing Commission granted fall racing dates to Lexington, to Douglas Park, Louisville; to the New Louisville Jockey Club, Louisville; and to the Eastern Agricultural Association.

TITANIC

Suspended in Mid-Ocean and May Be Raised For Salvage of $25,000,000 Says New York Engineer

The raising of the steamship Titanic has been seriously proposed by a New York engineer, who estimates that the work can be done at an expense of $1,000,000, a small sum when the value of the ship and contents—$25,000,000, is taken into consideration.

The ocean at the place where the Titanic sank has a depth of approximately two miles, but it is contended by the promoters of the project that because of the increased density of the water at a great depth, the vessel did not reach the bottom, but remains suspended at the depth where the weight of the steamship was overcome by resistance.

The plan advanced is the use of highly magnetized grappling hooks, operating from immense floats or barges, with which the depths will be literally raked until the magnets come in contact with the steel hull of the Titanic. Then the barges will be moved about, gradually drawing the wreck to the surface where the pumps will be set to work.

One thing which seems to have been overlooked by the promoters of the scheme is the fact that, in all probability the wreck of the Titanic, if ever located, will be found many miles from the place where the accident occurred.

After the first plunge, owing to the very density which the engineer mentions, the setting of the vessel must have been gradual, and, in all probability, at a decided angle. Great ocean currents course along the edge of the Newfoundland banks, and accepting the argument that the vessel never actually reached the bottom at its face value, these currents would carry the wreck along until resistance was overcome by decreasing depth and the vessel grounded.

The effort to raise the Titanic, if eventually undertaken, will be watched with interest far independent of salvage, the world would be glad to have the mystery which surrounds the greatest maritime disaster in history, officially cleared up.

KOOL AND KOZY

One Hundred Teachers Are Selected For the Philippines

At Washington city the Bureau of Insular Affairs has just completed the selection of over one hundred American teachers for service in the Philippine Islands. These young men and women come from the best universities, colleges and normal schools in almost every section of the United States, and were selected from a larger eligible list of candidates that ever before applied for positions with the Insular branch of the Government service.

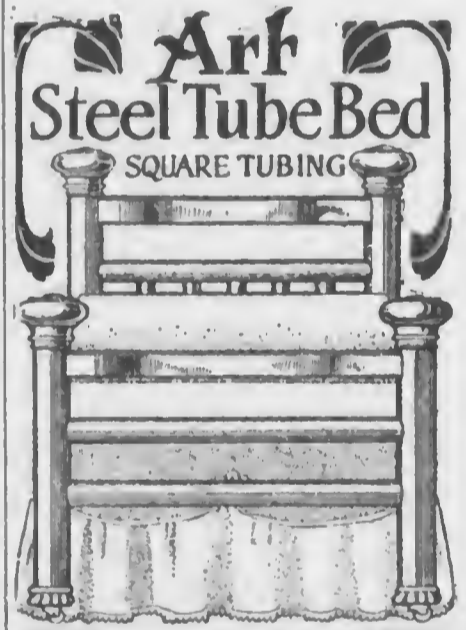

More than 11 years of our educational experiment there has demonstrated to those who have investigated the subject that, as a noted educator, on his return from the Orient said: "The achievements of the Bureau of Education in the Philippines make as bright and inspiring a chapter of history as was ever written," and that our Insular service offers excellent opportunity for honest, energetic and well educated young men to render a most conspicuous service for the Government and for themselves.

It is very gratifying to the official to know that there is such an increasing interest in its insular possessions, and that it can depend upon young, clear-headed and clear-minded men of good education to enter its service and assist in the solution of some of the problems which daily confront it.

Students and travelers in the Orient in recent years have returned to the United States with the report that the East is to be the center of the greatest Governmental activities of the twentieth century, and our position in the Philippines has made it possible for those on the ground to get an insight into these problems and take a very active part in their solution insofar as the participation by the United States Government is concerned.

The development of the American public school system in the Philippines, modified to meet local conditions, has been a most remarkable one during the past ten years, yet the opportunity for further growth is very great. The organization is still in its primitive period, and these hundred young men who have just sailed from San Francisco to add their training and experience to the nine thousand American and Philippine teachers already on the ground, and familiar with the local situation, will result in a very material advance in the performance of our obligations in the Philippines.

Do you see how the square cross-roads at top of head and foot beautify this bed? Imagine this design with round tubing in those positions. Would not the result be "ordinary" and monotonous?

It is just such details of clever and artistic designing that have made our steel beds so popular. And the very large corner posts with brass caps all combine to make this an unusually artistic bed.

Moreover this bed is as good as it looks. Because it is made of drawn steel tubing, very light in weight—extremely strong.

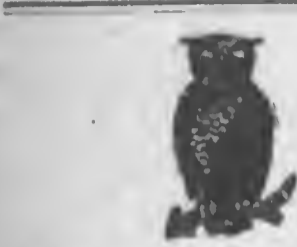

A child can move this bed with the greatest ease. Come in and see this bed. Then you will realize how good it is.

WITNESS AFTER WITNESS IN MAYSVILLE

SUCH EVIDENCE OUR READERS CANNOT DISPUTE

As we take up THE LEDGER week by week, we are struck by the hearty, unmistakable way in which witnesses after witnesses speak out as Mrs. McClelland does here. If these people were strangers living miles away, we might take little notice of them. But they are not. They are our neighbors, living among us. Their word is too easily proven to admit of any doubt. They speak out in the hope that their experience may be a guide to others.

Bryan's Action at Baltimore Means Certain Defeat For Democrats in November

THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET

For President—Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey.
Vice-President—Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana.

After a solid week of political battling the Democratic convention at Baltimore nominated Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for President and Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana for Vice-President.

The 46th ballot turned the trick for Wilson as follows:

Wilson	990
Clark	84
Harmon	12

BALTIMORE, July 24.—The Missouri delegation, which remained faithful to Clark, to the end, then moved that the nomination of Wilson be made unanimous. There was a great chorus of approval and the long fight was over.

Only four ballots were necessary today to reach a nomination. When the convention adjourned last night it seemed to be all but hopelessly deadlocked.

The Kentucky delegation deserted Clark.

W. J. Bryan refused the Vice Presidential nomination. He grinned like a Cheshire cat when Clark was defeated and says Wilson will sweep the country, but as Bill said the same thing three times about himself no sane person cares a peanut about what he says. Bryan's influence and prestige are now gone from his party.

Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, was nominated for the Vice Presidency at 2 o'clock this morning, after Governor Burke of North Dakota, had withdrawn. The convention then adjourned.

Woodrow Wilson, who now becomes the Democratic party's nominee for President of the United States, was born in 1856, in Virginia, where he was baptised under the full name of Thomas Woodrow Wilson.

Sensible Women Know Foundation of Health

As health talks to women become more general, both in the newspapers and on the platform, the mass of women are beginning to realize what the more cultivated have always known, that good health cannot be found in a powder box. The external of health may be obtained in that way, but the basis of health lies deeper, and yet is just as easily obtained.

The most important thing that a woman can do for herself, and about which she is often most neglectful, is to watch the condition of her stomach and bowels. The weary eyes, the bad breath, the frequent headaches, the pimples, the general air of lassitude is nine times out of ten the result of constipation or indigestion, or both. Many simple remedies can be obtained, but the best in the estimation of most women is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is mild, pleasant to the taste and exactly suited to her needs. It is far superior to salts, cathartic pills, waters, etc., which are entirely too violent.

Women should see to it that they have at least one movement of the bowels each day, and when showing any tendency to constipation should take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the small dose prescribed. A brief use of it will so train the stomach and bowels muscles that all forms of medicine can be dispensed with. These opinions are voiced by thousands of women, after personal experience, among them Miss V. L. Moore, 32 Claiborne St., Nashville, Tenn., and Florence Cook, Lucas, Ky.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. H. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.
